Aviation premiums reflect a host of ever-changing factors including your claims record, your health and the aviation industry as a whole. A new or used aircraft also comes with a high price tag and unique insurance challenges. With so much at stake, you should be able to trust a broker who understand your needs. Turn to Jones DesLauriers and our aviation specialists, with years of experience and a wealth of knowledge.

Consider This

Much like yourself, we have a passion for aviation and understand your need to fly. Whether you own a commercial or recreational aircraft, you need to protect yourself and your assets from unexpected incidents that may occur.

We have a licensed pilot with advanced ratings on staff and a living benefits specialist on our aviation team. This means that we can provide in-depth knowledge and expertise to design insurance policies to meet your individual requirements, as well as the unique needs of the aviation industry.
